

Māori Law Review

A MONTHLY REVIEW OF LAW AFFECTING MĀORI

Indigenous Law Speaker Series 2015

Tāmaki Makaurau – Auckland

The Māori Law Review and the Nin Tomas Indigenous Peoples and the Law Group at the University of Auckland invite you to these seminars in August

Thursday 13 August – 12:00 – 1:00pm

Room 332, building 810, University of Auckland Law School

Tracey Whare – Implementing the UN Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples – recent developments in international law

Tracey will talk about the September 2014 resolution of the UN General Assembly committing to concrete outcomes to implement the UN Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples. Engagement of indigenous peoples in the drafting of the resolution was often contested by states. However, indigenous peoples launched a global platform of engagement and used the opportunity to participate in ways that the UN had not considered before.

Thursday 20 August – 12:00 – 1:00pm

Room 332, building 810, University of Auckland Law School

Bernadette Arapere – From historian to lawyer – differing perspectives

Bernadette will talk about the transition from being a historian involved in claims and settlements to being a lawyer in that process. She will also talk about the Waitangi Tribunal process from different perspectives – historian, lawyer and as an iwi member.

Friday 28 August – 12:00 – 1:00pm

Buddle Findlay PwC Tower, 188 Quay Street

Paul Beverley – Recent developments in co-governance and co-management

Paul will talk about recent developments in the co-governance and co-management of natural resources. Paul has been involved in the development of innovative approaches to natural resource governance, including arrangements for the governance of Te Urewera and the Whanganui River.
